Provincial Problems

Explained By J. R. Love
M.L.A. At Local Meeting

J. R. Love, M.L.A., has been delivering a series of addresses throughout this district during the past week. The meetings were all well attended and considerable interest was taken in the discussions which followed. Provincial finance, the proposed provincial income tax, and the liquor question being the chief topics.

Outlining the conditions under which the Alberta Farmers were carrying on during 1922, Mr. Love stated that in Manitoba the average price per bushel of wheat obtained by the farmer was 77c. and the average yield per acre was 29.1 bushels; that the average income of the Manitoba farmer per acre was $17.49.

In Saskatchewan the returns to the farmer were smaller. His average price was 85c per bushel, his yield was 37.22.

In Alberta, at a greater distance from the Lakes, and with a smaller yield, the farmer obtained an average of 77c on a yield of 11.4 bushels giving an average income per acre of $8.78.

As a result of this condition the farmers of Alberta were on only half as prosperous as those of Saskatchewan and Manitoba. This meant that it was twice as hard for the Alberta farmer to finance his private business, and twice as difficult to pay his taxes.

The cause was largely due to drought conditions being prevalent throughout the province, which was greatly intensified by the grasshopper menace. Not only did this condition prevail in 1922 but also in 1921 when the farmers acted based on wheat production only yielded an income of $8.79.

This state of affairs was directly reflected in the provincial finance, and as a result there was owing to the province of Alberta at the close of the year 1922 approximately seven million dollars of unpaid and receivable revenue of unpaid taxes.

In 1921 and 1922 the actual revenue collected on income account fell short of the estimated revenue to be collected, leaving the province with a deficit of approximately two million dollars for each of those years.

These deficits could only be avoided in two ways: 1st, by increased taxation, which the people could not bear under existing economic conditions; 2nd, by an abrupt curtailment of public service which might cause great harm, and much hardship to the social welfare of our people.

Considerable curtailments have been made to meet these unfortunate conditions. In the matter of income expenditure, leaving out of account the telephone department which is more or less a self-supporting entity, and leaving out interest upon public debt.

If we were asked the question: "On what can I spend this $2.00 bill that will give me the greatest value in comfort and emergency requirements?" I would say: "A Hot Water Bottle!" You remember when you said at some previous time, when some member of the family took a chill or a severe pain or probably only a toothache: "If I only had a Hot Water Bottle!" I'll not get caught like this again!" $2.00 buys an excellent one at the Chauvin Pharmacy.

Alberta Wheat Board

W. J. Jackman has resigned as secretary of the Alberta wheat pool and his resignation has been accepted; but he will remain on the board of trustees representing the Edmonton district.

H. H. Wood, chairman of the provisional board of trustees, was re-elected chairman of the permanent board. N. P. Davidson has been named as acting assistant secretary to W. J. Jackman until a permanent secretary is appointed.

The trustees have decided to deal with farmers who have broken the agreement by selling their wheat through other agencies. It was stated. Breaches of agreement will be dealt with on their merits and a warning has been sent to all members recalling the penalty for future breaches of agreement.

Settlers Effects

Going Out Double
Those Coming In

The need of immigration policy to bring people to Canada and some sort of a campaign as well to keep them at home are emphasized by figures from the customs department regarding the incoming and outgoing settlers' effects. The figures are all adverse. While they are not considered as unfailing criterion of what is going on, they are at least very suggestive.

In the month of September the shipments of effects out of Canada were valued at $1,334,461 which was an increase of $208,450. In the same month the incoming effects were valued at $577,253 or about half of what went out.

In the six months ended September the exported effects were $581,775 as compared with imports of $3,368,000.

Hangs Out His Shingle

OUR 'SHORT STORY

Getting Even

It dawned upon Carl Mathers, the evening of his arrival at the Three Forks logging camp, that he was decidedly out of place in Perkin's crew. There was no sound reason why this should be the case for he was a trim-built, broad-shouldered young man of twenty-three. He had had considerable experience in the big woods, and he had never had any trouble if any crew with which he had worked. But nevertheless he was surely a misfit in Perkin's crew.

In the first place, there was the unusual and wholly understandable attitude of big Bill Perkins, the camp boss. Bill had glanced over him indifferently enough till he heard his name, and then his manner changed on the instant to peculiar and seemingly malicious interest. He stalked across the camp to where Carl was sitting quietly near the stove, and in loud coarse tones said: "So you're Carl Mathers, are you?"

"Yes, that is my name," said Carl looking up quickly. "You're the chap that drove the portage team on South Branch all last fall, are you?"

"Yes," replied Carl in some order, "I'm," grunted the boss. "You're a greenhorn in the big woods, ain't you?"

"I guess not," said Carl, warmly nettled at the offensive manner of the boss and noting that all the men were looking curiously at himself. "I've had four years experience in the big woods."

"Not in our crowd. We'll ask you down if you're fresh. Won't we men?" There was a chorus of loud assents from the circle of big rough woodmen around the camp. A deep flush of anger suffused Carl's face as he looked up at the sneering smile as he spoke of the boss.

"I think you'll find that I can hold my own with any man and you won't have to salt me down," he retorted sharply.

"We'll have none of your boasting and we'll test you—won't we men?" A loud unpleasant laugh rang around the camp.

Carl said nothing. He was angry, and clearly mystified. He could not understand the antagonistic attitude of Perkins, who was a stranger to him. Nor could he understand why the men, all strangers, displayed the same unpleasant interest in himself. He decided to study his new companions closely. He had ample opportunity for this, for he was entirely ignored during the rest of the evening. He observed that Bill Perkins, the boss, with his two brothers Tom and Pete, all apparently rough good-natured men with their fellows were the dominating personalities in the camp. Any proposal or opinion expressed by a Perkins was assented to without question by the other members of the crew.

Carl anticipated trouble. The tones of the big red-headed boss were unmistakable. But for what reason? He had not arrived that afternoon. He had not by word, deed or look done anything that could offend anyone. The boss had heard of him, but he could recall nothing in the past that could give cause for the mood which his name had seemed to create. It was a mystery he could not penetrate. He reflected that the portage team would come in two days. He would try and stay till then.

In the morning he received his orders in gruff tones from the boss. (Continued on page three)

The Size Of Family

The census officials tell us that the size of the Canadian family is dwindling. In 1881 there were on the average 5.33 persons to the Canadian family; in 1921 there were only 4.62. Quebec is the saving exception to the rule, the average number there having increased in the forty year period from 5.33 to 5.54. But in the Quebec succumbed to the tendency in the other provinces, and only Alberta and Saskatchewan showed a gain in the proportions of the average family. Barring this showing from the two prairie provinces, we shall as a nation have to fall back on the argument that the quality is improving as the quantity shrinks.

No Saskatchewan Wheat Pool This Year

As far as the provisional directorate is concerned, the Saskatchewan Wheat Pool will not operate in time to take care of the 1923 crop. It was decided at a meeting of the shareholders in Regina Friday. With a reservation that "the final decision will rest with the permanent board which will be elected as soon as the required acreage has been secured," the stand was adopted.

The late date at which the pool would be ready to market the balance of the 1923 crop is the reason given in the resolution, and the announcement was made at the desire of contract signers who wished to know the intentions of the pool in this respect.

A total of 208,415 acres have now been signed up under new contracts and waivered and it is estimated at least 700,000 acres can be secured in the present campaign, including most of the acreage signed up under original contracts.

With original contracts $22,840.50 was received in cash and a further sum of $14,235.50 in cash with waivers and new contracts. The face value making the total receipts $37,076.00 of notes received totals $70,672.90.

Barn, Feed And Harness Burnt on J. White Farm

Owing to the spontaneous ignition of a stack of feed adjoining the Barn, Mr. Joe White has suffered the loss of his two storey barn, the winter feed, harness and a number of other valuable items. Mr. White discovered the flames and endeavored to extinguish same with blankets at great personal risk, but his efforts were unsuccessful and the building was quickly involved, and became a total loss.

Mr. White is erecting a straw barn for this winter's use.

Old Country Elections

The Old Country is in the throes of an election campaign, which is being waged with considerable vigor. In all there are 525 Conservative candidates, 440 Liberals and 412 Labor candidates. Prominent among the issues are the Free Trade, Protection and Foreign Policy. The matter of Capital Levy is not being brought to the front.

Two heads may be better than one, but two fools don't make a wise man.

H. W. Wood Gives

Out Statement Of
U. F. A. Troubles

H. W. Wood, president of the United Farmers of Alberta and chairman of the permanent board of directors of the Alberta wheat pool, issued yesterday afternoon, explained the position of the U.F.A. financially, and also made as it relates to politics in the provinces, in answer to various charges.

"Is there any movement within the U.F.A. organization to have the organization withdrawn from active participation in the political affairs of the province?" he was asked.

"I don't know of any such movement," was the reply.

"Is the U.F.A. in serious financial difficulties?"

"The U.F.A. is in rather strained circumstances at the present time so far as ready cash is concerned, but there is nothing to be alarmed about," Mr. Wood answered.

"Is the U.F.A. in debt to the extent of $3,000?"

"I am not able to get the exact figures but I understand it is a little less than $3,000, not counting the Home Bank deposit as an asset," he replied.

"To what do you attribute the decrease in the membership of the U.F.A.?" was another question.

"Primarily to the unprecedented financial conditions that have existed during the last two years," he said. "This has been accompanied by divided efforts of the farmers during the past three months in harvesting and threshing the Alberta crop of grain."

"Do you attribute any of the decrease in membership to farmers rejecting against, and becoming opposed to the U.F.A. government?"

"A reaction from the political activities of 1921 was to be expected," the U.F.A. chief answered. "There is no doubt that there has been a reaction but I have no reason to believe that it has been more than normal."

H. E. Spencer M.P. Speaks at Kitscoty

H. E. Spencer, M.P. for Battle River, addressed a meeting in the town hall on the evening of November 19th. The gathering was one of a series being held for the purpose of enabling the member to keep in close touch with the constituents, thus affording an opportunity for discussion and criticism which should result in truly democratic representation. The speaker outlined clearly the proceedings and received an attentive hearing from the audience.

HIS MAJESTY'S MAILS ON CANADIAN PACIFIC

1.—A comfortable corner of the Baggage Car.
3.—Another view of the Baggage Car.

2.—Exterior of one of the new Canadian Pacific Mail and Baggage Cars.
4.—This is where the mails are sorted.

Almost every day we rely upon His Majesty's Postal service for the delivery of letters and parcels which are of value to us. We value their value were they delivered tardily. Seldom have we cause to complain of the service rendered in exchange for our few cents and we have come to expect the efficient regularity of that service regardless of the natural or economic disturbances which affect other services. The letter was stamped and placed in the postal box. It must be delivered, and with dispatch, rain or shine.

Due to the increasing use of His Majesty's Mails, the Canadian Pacific Railway has found it necessary to add to its rolling stock, twelve new Mail and Baggage coaches. These, being up-to-date in every respect, provide every facility for the handling of the mail, and a number of conveniences for the clerks which the older type of cars could not boast of. The "All Steel" cars are some of the finest used by Postal authorities in the world, and the Company is to be congratulated, in that providing every facility for the quick handling of postal matter, it has kept an eye to the comfort of the clerks.

The forward end of the travelling Post Office, for such it is, is used mainly for storage purposes. On one side, movable iron stanchions separate the bags destined for the various towns en route, and on the other is the gas stove, for cooking purposes, ice water tank, lavatory, wash basin, and clothes cupboard—inventions which are greatly commended by the clerks.

The rear end of the mail compartment is the business end. A long reversible table, running lengthwise, allows the clerk to face either side of the car in order to sort his parcels into the bags which are supported by folding racks, and into the boxes conveniently arranged above the bags for the accommodation of newspapers, and which can be quickly emptied by the simple expedient of raising the front. At the rear end is a table, the full width of the car, and behind this are the hundreds of pigeon holes into which the clerk must distribute the letters for the various towns, quickly, almost automatically. At his feet as he stands at his table, the clerk has a tray into which the letters posted when the train is at a station, drop. These letters he starts an distributor with the thought on the train to the terminal. Cords with which to tie the letters into bundles is conveniently at hand, and if some of the bundles contain registered mail they are placed into the pigeon holes at one side, over which a wire grating is fitted and locked. Everything is scrupulously clean.

The baggage and express end of the coaches is also the last word in car construction. As with the mail section, the doors open in the centre of the compartment, one half of which has a solid floor, the other half being fitted with fish racks. In addition to the conveniences afforded the mail clerks, the baggage men have a folding table which fits tightly against the wall when not in use, and which may be utilized as a dining table—but not there is too much business to talk of cards.

The twelve new cars were designed by C. H. Temple, Chief of Motive Power and Rolling Stock, Canadian Pacific Railway, and were constructed by the Canada Car and Foundry Company, Ltd., Montreal. They are designed to carry 30 tons of express matter and 10 tons of mail, a total of 40 tons compared with 30 tons, the capacity of the old type of coach. The Company has adhered to the six wheel truck, but heavier journals have been provided, 6 1/2 by 10 in place of the 5 by 8 inches. Another feature of the new coaches is the diaphragm ends. This eliminates the danger of people "riding blind".

Until more are constructed, the new coaches will operate between Montreal and Toronto, Montreal and Sault Ste. Marie, Toronto and St. John, N.B., and Winnipeg, and Edmonton on Canadian Pacific lines.

lic debt, the income expenditure on all public services has been reduced from $3,665,521 in 1921 to $7,990,442 in 1923. For the five years previous to 1921 our controllable expenditure had increased from $4,651,592 in 1916 to $8,865,521 in 1921. An annual increase of over $900,000 per annum.

REVENUE

Income revenue from taxation and other sources, except telephones, in creased from $4,238,974 in 1915 to $9,006,882 in 1920 at the rate of $1,194,222 per year. The estimated revenue for this year is $10,154,620 which is an annual increase of $252,619 per year since 1921, or an approximate reduction in the true of increased revenue from taxation and other sources, of 68 per cent.

CAPITAL REDUCTIONS

Surplus capital borrowings which amounted to $18,558,320 in 1921 have been reduced to $6,000,000 for the year 1923.

Seed grain and relief loans which let the Province in for a sum of $413,000 have been practically discontinued.

The "Cow Bill" which has involved the province to the extent of about $3,500,000 has been abolished.

In many cases people who took loans from the government for various purposes, have left the province and many of these debts will ultimately have to be paid by the people who remain in the Province. The sooner such a policy of paternalism is discontinued the better for all concerned.

We are now paying annually in charges on our public debt over three million dollars. This together with the cost of Education which now amounts to $2,325,380, takes up over (leaving out telephones.)

TAXATION PROBLEMS

The direct taxes on land such as the Wild Land Tax have produced about half a million dollars less revenue in 1922 than in 1920.

In Saskatchewan these same taxes produced about half a million dollars more revenue in 1922 than in 1920. This shows that land and property taxes in Alberta are less capable of bearing the burden of taxation than in Saskatchewan, largely due to all adverse agricultural conditions during the past years in Alberta.

On the other hand the Dominion Income tax in 1922, took half a million dollars more out of the province of Alberta than it did out of the province of Saskatchewan with its 1920, more people to pay it.

In 1923 the Dominion Government took out of the Province of Alberta by means of the Income Tax $2,020,850, 25 and gave back to the Province in compensation for public lands only $562,500.

By right and by the principle of British justice Alberta should have the administration of its own natural resources and the revenue obtained therefrom. By the B.N.A. act Alberta should be left the field of direct taxation. It is hoped the provincial government will be successful in its negotiations for its Natural Resources. If further revenue is needed to carry on the public services of the Province of Alberta the fairest way of securing that revenue is through the Income Tax.

REDUCTION IN SCHOOL GRANTS

The reduction in school grants has been critical, however even with the reductions, the total amount of the grants ever before. In 1921 the government was bearing 8.3 per cent of the school grants is greater this year cost of operating our schools. The latest figures from the Department of Education is that the government is now bearing 11 per cent of the cost of rural education and 9 per cent of the cost of urban education.

It is true that the reduction for village high schools has been much greater than the reduction for rural public schools. However, grants must be paid out of taxes collected. The main source of revenue is the Supplementary Revenue Tax. In rural districts this tax is six to seven times greater per capita than in towns and villages.

In the East the cost of the village High schools fell almost entirely on the village district. In many cases the village district gave free education to those living outside the village. This was unfair. The amendment made last season now permits the village High School district to charge up to $30 per year for each pupil outside the district taking high school work.

This makes up for the rather large decrease in the High School grants and places the cost of High School education on a much fairer basis. In many cases half or more of the pupils attending High School live outside the village district.

In regard to the recent Liquor Referendum. It is apparent that public opinion demands a change in dealing with the liquor question. From the comparatively few votes cast for Clause "B" one would conclude that the people do not want the bar back and do not want public drinking in any shape or form. Although Clause "D" has been interpreted in various ways it seems that the people want government control and sale of all liquors so that those who are determined to drink can secure liquor in a lawful manner from government vendors and take it home for consumption. As far as I am able to what the majority of the people want. In dealing with a problem such as the liquor question no government can please all the people. The best that can be hoped for is to make an honest effort to please the majority.

"See here" he said. "Tom Bailey will yard from them spruces out by the tenth brow. And if you can't cut fifty pieces of them by noon, you're no man with the axe."

On the way to work Carl tried to get some light on Bill's manner from Tom Bailey, who seemed to be agreeable. "I'll tell you what it is," said Tom. "he must have a spite again you. Bill's a mighty good feller, but the feller that's ever offered Bill has no business in this crowd."

"But I never saw him before. How could I have offered him?" said Carl. "Well, I dunno," said Tom, as he took a fresh chew of tobacco. "But I'll tell you what it is, Bill's boss of the ranch here-and his two brothers and the feller that won't feller their lead better hike out the portage in quick time. I never had any trouble with 'em yet, and I know which way to hold my mouth."

Nearly a mile from the camp they arrived at the place where they were to work. Carl saw with the eyes of an experienced woodsman that it would be a big job for one man to cut fifty pieces in such a chance in a day, to say nothing of a half day. The trees were a scrubby "church-butted" growth, a variety of timber which axemen have no particular liking for. But Carl had strong faith in his ability with the axe and piled his work with good will. By a little after eleven o'clock twenty of those rough logs were on the yard. And Tom Bailey was warmly admiring Carl's ability as a chopper when the boss strode along.

"Huh!" he said, with an ugly frown at Carl. "So that's all you can do, is it? You're no man with the axe. I'll give you another job."

Tom's eyes opened wide in amazement, but he thought he detected Bill's motive, so kept silent.

Carl threw down his axe, with a mighty effort to keep down his temper which was nearing the boiling point. "I'd like to see any of you crack choppers do better work," he said.

"Well, see!" that when the time comes," said Bill.

"I want you to help me and Pete put the top logs on his load out by the turn."

Carl followed him into the place indicated, with a strong mind to take no more orders from the bully who seemed to dislike him so mysteriously. But he reflected that he must try and endure it till the next day when the portage team would arrive from South Point.

"Now," said Bill, when the slide were placed for the last log for Pete's load, "All together, up she goes."

Carl was at the butt of the log. Pete was in the middle and Bill was at the top end.

Up went the heavy stick till the top was nearly reached, when Carl's peevish slipped its hold and the butt swung back, barley missing the three men, who sprang quickly out of the way. It was clearly an accident, but it afforded ample excuse for the boss to give vent to his mysterious hatred of Carl.

"The like of you to work in the woods!" he shouted. "If I wasn't a better man than you I'd never show my face in any decent crowd. You're dreamin' of a noisy—that girl at South Point? Well, I'll tell you what it is, my fine gent, Harriet Forbes wants nothin' to do with a lubber like you. She told me all about it—the way she fooled you and all. And I'll tell you more, she's mine as soon as I get ready to settle down."

Carl was puffed to the heart, but he made no more reply. Indeed, for a moment he was too stunned to think clearly. Bill's insulting manner from the first was nothing to this last thrust. Harriet Forbes! Could this man's words be true?

In a moment a chain of events flashed through his mind his first meeting with Harriet Forbes, the only daughter of the keeper of the supply store at South Point, their many subsequent meetings through the long summer, their happy strolls together, and the long joyous autumn evenings spent in each other's company, until at last they had agreed to become life partners in the coming spring. Her parting words as he left for the deep woods several months before, rang through his mind.

"Take care of yourself, Carl. I'll be waiting for you."

He looked at the taunting face of the boss, and the amused smiles of a number of men who had come along on their way to the camp for dinner, and a rage he had never known before swept through his being. He recalled how with himself that he would be even with the man who had so cruelly tortured him. But could Bill's words be true? Did Harriet care for this un- could bully? Had she deceived him? He could not, he would not believe it. And yet—O the mystery and pain of it all!

Most of the men were hurrying on to the camp. Carl waited so that he could be alone. He would find no comfort in their society.

After Bill had finished his tirade he went back along the road to look over some work before proceeding to the camp.

All winter the men had made a short cut from that part of the woods to the camp by following the frozen stream along which the logs were browed to be driven down in the spring. It was now about the middle of March, and the logs were piled many feet high along the banks. The snow was gradually settling, and the overhanging brows, some of which were poorly skidded, looked dangerous. Though the men had remarked this, most of them continued to prefer the short route to the more round-about sled road.

Carl walked slowly along the stream wrestling with his thoughts. He took no notice of the brows and had just passed the last one when a crash, followed instantly by a cry of pain, arrested him with a start. He turned around and there on the ice lay Bill Perkins, his face twisting with pain, a large spruce log lying across his legs. Carl glanced at the brow above and with a bound was at his side.

"Quick! Quick!" groaned Bill, "save me! they're all coming!"

Even then the great mass of logs above were beginning to move. With a great effort Carl rolled the log off the man's feet and catching him by his jacket collar, ran, dragging him with all his might. They had not passed the brow by more than a few yards when the great pile of more than a thousand logs came tumbling down with a mighty crash, smashing the ice in the stream and making a jumbled heap of timber many feet high on the place

Why do other people's woes by looking grim and grey?
Let's whistle up a hope or two to chase the fears away!

Say—what's the use of envying the feasts we haven't got?
Let's count the currants in our buns—
—'till we cheer us up a lot.

We won't chat glibly, dismally, of trouble, grief and loss—
We'll chat of blessings, thankfully, and hide each petty cross.

I've not we know—of course we do life must have tracks of care?
But still it has some sunny miles—
Thank God they are there!

A Plain Talk

It is easy to be brave when things are going smoothly, when there are no obstacles to be overcome, when there is no resistance to our efforts.

It is when our back is to the wall, when we don't know which way to turn, when every thing looks black and forbidding, that the quality and the quantity of our courage are revealed. That is the test which proves our mettle.

Under the test the majority of us either weakly throw up our hands and give up the fight altogether, or we take the line of least resistance, drop our high ambitions, and go on in a half-hearted way, making a bare living. We haven't the courage to develop the great strength that is latent in us. Most of us are only half the men and women we might be.

The ideal world would be a world in which every man would continue to go to school until the day of his death—Mr. Robert Lynd.

People in church are ashamed to sing. They excuse themselves by saying they have not got voices, or do not know the tune or the words. The same people will take up any rotten song in the street with infallible correctness—Sir Hugh Allen, Director of the Royal College of Music.

"Dearest, do you think you could be happy with a man like me?"
"Well, perhaps—if he wasn't too much like you!"

The Value Of A Good Male

(Experimental Farms Note)

That it pays in dollars and cents to breed from pedigreed bred to lay cockerels has been frequently demonstrated. One illustration may be taken from the last Canadian Egg Laying Contest held at Ottawa. The Experimental Farm had a pen of White Leghorn pullets (pen 55) in this Contest, nine of these pullets were from the same sire though they were from nine different mothers. The total production of the nine mothers in their pullet-year was 1468 eggs or an average of 162. The nine pullets in the 52 weeks of the Contest laid 1893 eggs, an average of 210. The sire of these pullets came from a line of high producers of which the six nearest female ancestors averaged 232 eggs in their pullet-year. The care of the mothers and of the daughters was similar, therefore, the increased production must have been due to the sire and if he had had no more than the nine daughters that were in this pen the increase of 400 eggs at an average price of two cents an egg would have meant $8.00 additional.

It is a question if anything brings quicker increased revenue in the flock than a proper selection of the male and now when breeders should be seeing about securing the males for mating next spring with the flock this matter should receive attention. The man who would make the maximum from his flock must use only males that have a record of production behind them; males that can transmit this ability to their daughters. There are available in Canada breeders who specialize in pedigreed stock a good many of them under the name of Performance and through registration secured in the Canadian National Egg Laying Contests. From these, as well as the Experimental Farms and Colleges, good breeding males may be secured if they are purchased now rather than when they are needed next spring.

Natural Gas

On Friday evening thousands of Edmonton people saw the official opening of the Edmonton gas system when Mayor Duggan lighted the flame in the high pressure line crisscrossing the Fifth Street bridge. Northwestern Utilities Limited, the gas company, is supplied with 3,500 customers. In the installation of their system this company made a record for rapid work. The gas is piped about 85 miles from Viking. Starting work in July its long pipe line was completed by the end of October, the city distribution system, being ready for service a few days later. The gas supply in the pressure area at Viking is estimated at sixty billion cubic feet. The ten wells drilled for the Edmonton system have a daily flow of fifty million cubic feet. The gas is high in B.T.U.'s.

O. HAWTHORN, Agent
CHAUVINCANADIAN NATIONAL
RAILWAYSThe Cow; Mother
Of Prosperity

Where the cow is kept and cared for, civilization advances, lands grow richer, homes grow better, debts grow fewer."

The above is an extract from the preface of a book entitled "The Cow, the Mother of Prosperity," copies of which are being distributed by the Bank of Montreal. This book is probably the best popular treatise on dairy farming which has ever been published. It has been written with a view not only to guiding the farmer in the selection and breeding of the best and most profitable types of dairy cows, but also to guiding him in the care and feeding of dairy cows in every description of climate and soil throughout the continent of North America. The author, Mr. R. A. Haynes, of the Agricultural Extension Department, International Harvester Company, in his foreword, describes the cow as one of the greatest blessings to the human race, "No nation or people," he says, "has become highly civilized without her. She produces the best human food on earth. She makes this health-building strength-giving food from grass and clover plants. Without her agriculture is not permanent or prosperous, people are not healthy or happy. Wherever the cow has taken her rightful place, and man has done his part we find homes furnishing an income every week of the year. We find homes with conveniences. We find intelligent, thrifty, debt-free people with minds and hearts alert from steady employment. We find a good citizenship, a good agriculture. Truly the cow is the mother of prosperity."

He proceeds to describe typical localities to which the cow would bring prosperity. Then he tells how to select the right kind of cows, describing in detail the good and bad points of cows from head to tail. The breeding, care and feeding of cows, the best kinds of feeds in various localities, the testing of cows and their milk, methods of milking, and type and care of dairy utensils, the best methods of marketing milk, the care of calves, either for rearing or for the production of veal, the use of manure, the best breeds for varying conditions and the treatment of diseases are all dealt with fully and in plain language that anyone can understand.

A valuable feature of the book is the fact that every point dealt with is illustrated by photographs specially taken for the purpose or by diagrams. Over 250 photographs are reproduced. The Bank of Montreal is doing a splendid work for farmers by having a special edition of many thousands of this valuable book printed for free distribution throughout farming districts in Canada. We understand that the demand for this book has exceeded all expectations, but the reserve supply has been secured, so that a limited number is stillable free of cost. Application for this book should be made to the local branch of the Bank of Montreal.

A tobaccoist sold a man four cigars for a quarter. The customer asked for a match.

STUDEBAKER LIGHT-SIX

Studebaker's vast resources are utilized to manufacture (not assemble) the Light-Six completely in the newest and most modern large automobile plants in the world.

Resources, consisting of $50,000,000 of actual net assets, together with $45,000,000 of plants, make it possible for Studebaker to offer you a six-cylinder car, at less than $1500, that is emphatically superior in design, construction and performance to any car within hundreds of dollars of its price.

By complete manufacture, Studebaker not only guards the quality of each part, but saves the middleman's profits, with the result that no other make of car ever built, by anyone, at any price, represents so great a dollar-for-dollar value as the Light-Six.

Evidence of its mechanical superiority is found in its practical freedom from vibration. This is accomplished by the perfect engine balance secured through machining the Light-Six crankshaft and connecting-rods on all surfaces. This requires 61 precision operations. No other car in Canada selling for less than $2,500 follows this practice.

It is significant, therefore, that the sale of $1,350 Studebaker cars during the first six months of this year broke all records. Buyers are justified in expecting more for their money in a Studebaker than in any other car.

The Chauvin rink will, it is expected, be ready by the end of this week.

The anniversary services in the Knox Church Ribstone will be held on December 16th, when the Rev. W. MacKenzie of Chauvin will conduct the services at 11.00 a.m. and 7.30 p.m. Special collections will be taken on behalf of the building fund.

TO IMPROVE DANCING

"What can we do to improve the present method of dancing?" thundered the parson. "Dancing is more hunting for music."

"We might fix on the music," suggested a bad young man.

"The parson was giving a lesson on the clock-life."

"You must give me all your attention," he said. "It is impossible for you to form a true idea of this fustian recipe unless you keep your eyes fixed on me."

Honesty is the best policy for some—for others it is the only policy.
